

1924. The Operating Theatre, at the front of the hospital overlooking Rothwell Road. Note the anaesthetist's equipment, one cylinder of Oxygen and plenty of ether!

Extract from the annual report of 1924:- "Work has been commenced and will shortly be completed, on the alterations to the X-Ray Dept. The new apparatus which has been purchased at a cost of £1,300 is the best and most up-to-date that could be procured, and will prove a great boon to the Medical Staff in the diagnosis of various ailments."
